

APPRENTICESHIP

City of Los Angeles Honors Hospitality Training Academy

On November 16, 2018, as part of National Apprenticeship Week, the City of Los Angeles presented a special commendation to the Hospitality Training Academy (HTA) to recognize its efforts to improve the lives of job seekers through non-traditional apprenticeships. The HTA offers culinary and room attendant apprenticeships that train workers for housekeeping and line cook positions in LA's high-growth hospitality industry.

Using federal, state, county and local city funding, HTA works with low-income job-seekers on their resumes to prepare them for interviews and job/skill training.

HTA's apprentices and employer partners were also recognized for their hard work and commitment to HTA's programs and mission. HTA's labor partner, UNITE HERE Local 11, as well as some of their employer partners and apprenticeship graduates, were present.

Learn more about the Hospitality Training Academy at <https://lahta.org/>

Apprentice graduates from the Hospitality Training Academy pose with their certificates.